

Charles Valentine Riley Memorial Foundation

Board of Directors, 2011-2012

Ellen Bergfeld, Madison, Wisconsin. Dr. Bergfeld is the CEO of the American Society of Agronomy, Crop Science Society of America, Soil Science Society of America, and the Alliance of Crop, Soil and Environmental Societies. She also serves as the Secretary/Treasurer of the Agronomic Science Foundation. Previously, she served as the Executive Director of the American Society of Animal Science. She received her B.S. from the Ohio State University and her M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Nebraska.

William Fisher, Washington, DC. Mr. Fisher is the Vice President of Science and Policy Initiatives with the Institute of Food Technologists. Prior to his present position, he gained extensive experience in the food industry where his experience spanned most facets of executive management and global business development. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Illinois.

Barbara P. Glenn, Washington, DC. Dr. Glenn is Vice President, Science and Regulatory Affairs, at CropLife America. She previously served as Managing Director of Animal Biotechnology at the Biotechnology Industry Organization, Executive Vice President – Scientific Liaison for the Federation of Animal Science Societies and Research Dairy Scientist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Research Service in Beltsville, MD. Barb received her Ph.D. in Ruminant Nutrition and Bachelor of Science in Animal Science from the University of Kentucky.

John C. Gordon, Portland, Oregon. Dr. Gordon is Pinchot Professor Emeritus and former Dean of the School of Forestry and Environmental Studies at Yale University. He is currently active in the management of commercial forestry enterprises and is an adjunct professor in public administration at Portland State University. He received a B.S. degree from Iowa State University. He received B.S. and M.S. degrees in animal science from the University of Illinois.

James (Jim) Gulliford, Ames, Iowa. Mr. Gulliford is Executive Director of the Soil and Water Conservation Society. Previously, he served as EPA Assistant Administrator for the Office of Prevention, Pesticides and Toxic Substances and as Director of the Department of Soil Conservation (later the Division of Soil Conservation) for the State of Iowa. He holds B.S. degree in Forestry Management and a M.S. degree in Forestry Economics and Marketing, from Iowa State University.

Edward A. Hiler, Runaway Bay, Texas. Dr. Hiler is a member of the National Academy of Engineering and is a fellow in the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is former Vice Chancellor for Agriculture and Life Sciences at Texas A&M University and is currently serving on the board of an international machinery company. He earned his B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees at The Ohio State University.

Molly Jahn, Madison, Wisconsin. Dr. Jahn is Professor in the Department of Agronomy and the Laboratory of Genetics and Center for Sustainability and the Global Environment and former Dean of the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, University of Wisconsin-Madison. Prior to the deanship, as a professor at Cornell University she focused on plant breeding, genetics and genomics of vegetables with extensive international engagement. She is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and she received degrees from Swarthmore College, MIT, and Cornell University.

Marlyn L. Jorgensen, Garrison, Iowa. Mr. Jorgensen is an active soybean and corn producer and is involved in the management of a food processing company. He is a former president of the American Soybean Association and a former member of the Advisory Board for the Dean of Agriculture at Iowa State University and of the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture's Advisory Committee on Research, Economics and Education. He earned a B.S. degree from Iowa State University.

Gilbert A. Leveille, Denville, New Jersey. Dr. Leveille is a past president of the Institute of Food Technologists and of the American Society for Nutrition. He is currently President of Leveille Associates, a food and nutrition consulting company. Dr. Leveille has held positions with the University of Illinois, Michigan State University, General Foods Corp., Nabisco Foods, McNeil Nutritionals, Cargill, Inc., and the Wrigley Science Institute. Dr. Leveille received a BS degree from the University of Massachusetts and MS and PhD degrees from Rutgers University. He also has been awarded a D.Sc. (honorary) from Purdue University.

Lowell W. Randel, Alexandria Virginia. Mr. Randel is president of The Randel Group, LLC and Science Policy Director for the Federation of Animal Science Societies. He is the former Deputy Assistant Secretary for Congressional Relations at the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and also served as Director of Legislative and Intergovernmental Affairs for the Research, Education and Economics Mission Area at USDA. He holds a Bachelor's Degree in Agricultural Economics and a Master's Degree in Agricultural Development, both from Texas A&M University. He also received a Juris Doctorate from George Mason University .

Richard L. Ridgway, Flower Mound, Texas . Dr. Ridgway is a former research leader and national program leader for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service and former member of the graduate faculty at Texas A&M University . He currently is managing partner of cotton and grain sorghum farms in Terry County, Texas and a member of the Chancellor's Council at Texas Tech University . He received a B.S. degree from Texas Tech and M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Cornell University .

Katherine (Kitty) Smith, Fulton, Maryland. Dr Smith is Chief Economist and Vice President for Programs, American Farmland Trust. Previously, she held a series of leadership positions at USDA's Economic Research Service, most recently as its Administrator. She is a Presidential Rank awardee for Meritorious Executive Service and a Fellow of the Agricultural and Applied Economics Association. She earned a B.S and Ph.D. from the University of Maryland.